

Mässy Recordings (MÄS-202) "The Internalization of Mässy" Compilation CD

"The Internalization of Mässy" includes 13 previously unreleased tracks and a remix. It's a compilation that gives us a worldwide vision of skweee at the moment.

It brings all the different ways of skweee together in a unique way. The tracks are tied together with the feeling they share, beyond the similarities found in technic or rhythm.

These musicians do not underestimate their listeners. Everything you hear is created without trying to give the listeners what they think they want - instead of that the record offers a possibility to use one's whole capacity of receiving.

As a phenomenon, Skweee has grown steadily and reached wider audiences, new labels are popping out, more promising artists influencing the whole field of electronic music. In terms of music, getting global has made skweee more diverse. You can also hear how these artists take ideas from each other and then develop it in different directions. You can feel the stadium-size synthesis of Mother North, Drum machinery of Jyrkkä Pajulaakso and Spartan Lovers rugged touch, which has that something to turn on every living creature.

Some of these tracks are easier to get into, but there's stuff you can listen to on and on, repeating for days, and still find yourself catching new ways of thinking about that musical piece. There's enough texture to get you hooked and enough interesting stuff to find beyond that, to keep you hooked.

This Mässy has the ability to bring hating neighbours together and give them the possibility to forgive and forget, and most important, share its positive vibe and ride the rhythm like never before.
